

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1931

Summer Wedding Date Of Popular Couple Is Announced

Although the betrothal of Miss Margaretta Lederman, daughter of Mrs. A. C. Lederman, 417 1/2 South Broadway, to Theodore Bolte, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Bolte, of Kearney, Neb., was announced several weeks ago, it was not until a recent delightful dinner party, given by Miss Lederman's sister, Mrs. Clyde V. Webb of Anaheim, that friends of the charming young bride-elect were apprised of her choice of June 24, as a wedding date.

Mrs. Webb's hospitality was extended to a group of her sister's closest friends, who were bidden to her home, 1209 West Broadway, Anaheim, for a dinner and bridge. A brilliant color motif in which varying tones of yellow from pale ivory to glowing orange, were employed, made the dinner table an especially effective scene. Golden tapers cast their flickering rays over the gleaming linen and the massed blossoms of the centerpiece, while place cards, nut cups and all the details of a formal dinner, repeated some of the cheerful color tones.

With the serving of the final course, Mrs. Webb distributed tiny scrolls sealed with orange wax. When opened, these revealed heart shaped pictures of Miss Lederman and Mr. Bolte, and the date of June 24. Miss Lederman's choice of the date was determined by the fact that it had been chosen by her parents for their wedding which occurred 40 years ago in Nebraska City, Neb., the former family home.

Bridge was played in the afternoon hours, with prizes awarded to Miss Boyd Joplin, Mrs. W. H. Wright and Mrs. B. M. Given.

Miss Lederman received her high school training in Grand Island, Neb., and her college training at the state university in Lincoln, majoring in kindergarten work. She has been most successful in her chosen phase of teaching, both in Grand Island, and in the city where she has taught for the past three years. Her fiancé has been in California for the past 10 years, and is with the R. G. Dun company.

The friends bidden to the dinner party at which their wedding date was announced, included Mrs. J. Farley Smith, Mrs. Cassius Paul, Mrs. W. H. Wright, Miss Rebecca Joplin, Miss Isabel Irvine, Miss Boyd Joplin and Miss Dirlin Wilson of this city; Mrs. Herbert Celke and Mrs. Arthur Shipka, Anaheim; Miss Lucille Benson, Mrs. Robert Chenault and Mrs. B. M. Given, Long Beach; and A. C. Lederman, Santa Maria, and Miss Thelma Lambert, Inglewood.

Popular Bride-to-be Receives Pretty Kitchen Ware

No doubt her pretty kitchen, gleaming with modern green and white equipment, will be the pride of Miss Miriam Adamson's heart when she becomes the bride of Frederick J. McMillan, and assumes the fascinating duties of a young housewife. And all the colorful utensils will recall the joys of the party given last night by Mrs. Clark Barr, when the guests showered the young bride-to-be with the gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Barr have been life-long friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Adamson, the two families having been neighbors in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, before they came to California and to Santa Ana to reside again as neighbors. So it was with much pleasure that Mrs. Barr issued invitations to a green kitchen shower for Miss Miriam Adamson, entertaining last night in her home at 715 West Second street.

Amidst the pastel hues of gladioluses, roses and larkspur, a series of games, including cootie and lotto, provided a merry evening. The hostess had a number of prizes in readiness, and of these, her young honoree secured a small pair of scissors while a dainty handkerchief went to Mrs. Arlo Hayward; a vegetable grater to Miss Gladys Stoneman; a box of mending silks to Mrs. Belle Rogers, and a salt and pepper set to Mrs. William Adamson.

The interval preceding refreshments was chosen for the gift shower, and Miss Adamson was presented a basket, gay with bows and greenery, and filled with the prettily wrapped packages. After their inspection by all the guests, Mrs. Webb, assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Russell Thompson and by Miss Gladys Stoneman, served ices, cake and coffee on flower decorated individual trays.

The guest list included in addition to Miss Adamson, her mother, Mrs. William Adamson; her fiancé's mother, Mrs. Edith McMillan, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Adamson Jr. of Oceanside; Mrs. McWilliams, two sisters, Mrs. Russell Alford, Taft, Mrs. Philip MacLane Jr., Inglewood; Mrs. Webb's mother, Mrs. William Thompson; Mrs. Charles Solomon, Mrs. George Graham; Mrs. Russell Thompson, Mrs. Harold Dawson, Mrs. Belle Rogers, Mrs. Arlo Hayward, the Misses Helen Gladys, Beulah Dudgeon, Evelyn Wurster, Olive Antidell, Helen Overton, Bessie Potter, Pauline Graham, Cathryn Lacy and Gladys Stoneman.

Community Players Have Program of Spanish Arts

A program devoted almost entirely to interpretations of Spanish arts was given last night at the meeting of the Santa Ana Community Players held at "The Barn".

Miss Lella Watson opened the program with a talk on "Modern Spanish Drama and Dramatists," stating there is probably no cleaner drama in the world than Spanish. She told of how the Spanish drama of today had its beginning 99 years ago. In mentioning various noted dramatists of Spain, Miss Watson included the Quintero brothers. They wrote the play, "By Their Words Ye Shall Know Them," which was presented last night.

The production was given under the direction of Mrs. Robert Horn, and was acclaimed by all present as being exceptionally well presented. Members of the cast included Miss Dorothy Mayhew, Frank Humphrey and Robert Horn. The Quintero brothers are noted for such plays as this, Miss Watson explained, and have written every type except tragedy.

Spanish music for the evening was arranged by Miss Ruth Frothingham. Vocal solos given by Miss Henrietta Armentrout, accompanied on the guitar by Francisco Salas, included "Jurame," "Noche Azul" and "Estrellita."

Frank Lansdown gave a report of the recent tournament of one-act plays, telling of its financial success. It was announced that the annual election of officers will be held at the next regular meeting of the Players.

Refreshments of tamales and coffee were served by Mrs. Roy Beall and her committee.

Bridge Club Members Are Welcomed to Breaky Home

Bidding members of her bridge club to her attractive home at 2365 Riverside drive, Mrs. J. E. Breaky was hostess at a delightful party Wednesday afternoon. Gladioluses, larkspur and Spanish broom introduced the color motif which was evident throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. A. J. Anderson scored high in the diversion of the day and Mrs. R. T. Nixon was consoled. Late in the afternoon came an appetizing refreshment course, continuing in the chosen color scheme of the afternoon.

Mrs. R. E. McClellan was a special guest, while club members shared the pleasant occasion with Mrs. Breaky were Mrs. A. J. Anderson, Mrs. George Palmer, Mrs. R. T. Dixon, Mrs. John J. Vernon, Mrs. Archie Anderson and Mrs. Olen F. Turner.

Various Luncheons Are Preface to Bridge at Country Club

Various pleasant little luncheons were staged in Santa Ana Country club yesterday prefacing the May bridge tea of the afternoon at which Mrs. Charles Kelley and Mrs. George Briggs were hostesses.

One of the pleasantest of these was a "foursome" planned by Mrs. J. B. Roberts as a compliment to Mrs. W. W. Perkins, with the latter's sister, Mrs. James E. Liebig, and Mrs. Theo. A. Winbiger to complete the group. Mrs. Perkins is planning to leave next week for a summer of travel that will take her to Tulsa, Okla., points in Kansas and eventually to Florida. There is a possibility that she will extend her travels to Southern Europe, accompanying Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith of Los Angeles. Mr. Griffith, one of the younger faculty members of University of Southern California, has received one of the coveted two-year teaching scholarships recently put into effect between European and United States universities, whereby outstanding faculty members are granted a change of locale.

Prof. Griffith will teach in the University of Madrid, and he and Mrs. Griffith (a sister of James E. Liebig) will sail in August to enjoy their "Castle in Spain" in reality, with a possibility of Mrs. Perkins accompanying them.

Other luncheon parties yesterday included that at which the tea hostesses, Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Kelley, presided, and where guests were Mrs. Charles Kendall, Mrs. W. E. Winslow, Mrs. Howard Timmons, Mrs. Robert G. Tuthill and Mrs. F. E. Farnsworth.

Mrs. John I. Clark entertained at an adjoining table, where covers were laid for Mrs. Charles V. Davis, Miss Barbara Jane Davis, Mrs. Roland P. Yeagle and Mrs. W. N. Wimmer of Anaheim.

Yesterday proving an ideal day for bridge playing, over half a hundred feminine members of Santa Ana Country club motored down to the clubhouse to enjoy the May bridge tea at which Mrs. George Briggs and Mrs. Charles Kelley were hostesses.

They found the clubhouse most inviting with its abundance of vivid flowers, for both Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Briggs have delightful gardens to yield them quantities of blossoms for decorative purposes. The guests found it quite diverting to try to name the different varieties of blooms represented in some of the baskets.

Mrs. Cotton Mather scored high in the afternoon contest, and was rewarded with a handsome atomizer. A piece of imported pottery was presented to Mrs. J. E. Liebig, holder of second high score, while to Mrs. Howard Timmons, scoring third high, was awarded a box of smart double correspondence cards.

Punch and wafers were served at the tea hour.

Country club members are now anticipating the May dancing party to be held next Friday night, with Judge and Mrs. J. B. Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. George Baker as hosts. Much satisfaction has been expressed by dance enthusiasts over the announcement that the Shirey orchestra had been engaged for the event. This orchestra has played for the last two informal dances, and has delighted everyone attending.

Spring flowers, bright and colorful, added their charm to the home, where the guests spent a merry afternoon, completed by the dainty tea menu served by the hostess.

It was at the conclusion of this friendly interval that Mrs. Noe asked her honor guest to be seated at a small table, which was then heaped with packages brought by her friends. Their delicate pink and blue ribbons hinted at the exquisite articles for a layette which had been selected for the happy honoree.

Afternoon hours were spent in fancy work and placing quilts. Members regretted that several of their number were unable to share the pleasant affair. Miss Minnie Cowan, Mrs. Nellie Parker and Mrs. Lena Hewitt are attending the G. A. R. encampment at Sacramento and Mrs. Luane Leach is touring the east.

For Better and Greener Lawns

I believe there must be "cannibal" varieties of lawn grass, or else the educated lawn grass reverts to type and becomes free, unrestrained, and very lush and coarse. At all events the big coarse tufts found so often after the first cutting have to be taken out or they will take the lawn, hook, line and sinker.

This isn't altogether a joy for the lawn looks as if it had had a bad attack of chicken pox. Comfort yourself with the thought that clover soon germinates and covers up the unsightly site of operation.

In using the commercial kind of fertilizer, be careful in scattering it over the lawn. Get it on evenly, and on a lawn that is bone-dry, then drench the lawn with the hose so that the fertilizer is washed in to the roots. If it is left on the grass, and half dissolved, it burns the grass and is not nearly so effective. For fertilizing plants I find that the best results are had by making a strong solution of the fertilizer. It does not dissolve very readily when mixed with the soil.

If you go into your garden some fine morning and find your sweet pea plants with tops neatly nipped off, just lay it to the operations of the night-going slugs and he yourself to the nearest place you can buy air-slacked lime. Sprinkle generously around the plants and work into the soil around the roots, to a depth of two inches. It is good for the plants, but fatal to the slugs.

2 egg yolks
Salt and pepper.
The crisp, rich deliciousness of these croquettes make them the ideal central theme for a vegetable plate. Fresh asparagus, green peas and strips of cooked golden carrot would tempt the most finicky appetite!

Another and less expensive version of these croquettes uses chopped peanuts, and still another uses peanut butter. Make a compact little roll of peanut butter to center each croquet, crumb and fry in deep fat.

Blanch the almonds and cut in thin strips. Cook and mash the required amount of potato, add the melted butter and beaten egg yolks with it with salt and pepper, and beat till very thick and smooth. Add the almonds and cool. Shape into small long croquettes, dip into egg, then in crumb, and a second time in the egg mixture. Place in a frying basket and fry in deep fat to a delicate brown. Allow two croquettes for average servings.

The amounts given in this recipe make 12 small croquettes, each having about 140 energy making calories to its credit. In the vegetable plate this way of cooking potato is most appreciated, not only because it adds the necessary energy food, but for its rich flavor.

Relief Corps

Since Mrs. Sarah Brown, president of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, is attending the G. A. R. encampment in Sacramento, the senior vice president, Mrs. Leona Barnett, conducted the meeting of the corps Wednesday afternoon in K. P. hall.

The relief committee reported 27 calls and nine bouquets for the sick and shut-in members since the previous meeting. Interesting accounts of some of the proceedings at the department convention were read by the secretary.

There was some discussion as to the quantity of flowers needed for Memorial day on May 30, and the matter was finally referred to the flower committee for its members to arrange. Since the next meeting date of the Corps comes so close to that date, it was decided to dispense with the usual dinner.

A new member, Mrs. Lottie Morgan, was elected. There were sixteen officers present although several are in attendance at the convention. One visiting, Mrs. E. Smith from the N. P. Banks Corps at Glendale.

Queen Esther Rally Is Concluded With Coronation

Bringing to a conclusion the San Diego district Queen Esther rally held last evening in the First Methodist church with Queen Esther girls of that church as hostesses, Miss Helen Wiesseman was crowned queen of the district in a colorful coronation pageant which followed the address of the evening given by Dr. Carl Knopf, of the University of Southern California. More than 150 delegates were present to take part in the banquet held at 6 o'clock in the church dining hall. Invitations to the affair referred to it as a garden party, and it proved to have for its setting baskets of vari-tinted flowers from the loveliest of the city's gardens. The artistic effect was achieved by Mrs. J. T. Wilson, Mrs. J. G. Robertson and Mrs. F. J. Haynes.

In addition to the 16 district officers, Dr. and Mrs. Knopf and Dr. and Mrs. George Warner were special guests at the banquet. Mrs. W. J. Stauffer, Queen Esther adviser, opened the meeting with an official welcome to all delegates. Group songs and yells were given throughout the dinner hour. Musical readings were given by Miss Charlotte Quigley. After a district report by Mrs. J. L. Morris, friendship circles were formed. The meeting closed with group singing of "Taps."

Adjourning to the auditorium, where Mrs. W. B. Snow presided at the organ, the young people heard an excellent program. Mrs. E. S. Williamson, president of the district, led in prayer. Miss Lorene Croddy gave a vocal solo accompanied on the piano by Duncan Harbols.

Dr. Knopf's address was an appropriate one on a novelette which the speaker just completed on the Book of Esther. The entire Biblical book was carried into a short story by the well known educator, with all experiences related treated as adventures. Dr. Knopf stressed the watchword of the Queen Esthers, "Who Knoweth Whether Thou Art Come to the Kingdom for Such a Time as This."

The coronation of Miss Wiesseman as district queen of the Queen Esthers followed. Those taking part, in addition to the queen included Miss Ethel Coffman, spirit of service; Miss Marguerite Lewis, loyalty; Miss Evelyn Fairley, membership; Miss Catherine Remont, co-operation; Miss Catherine Budd, generosity; Miss Jeanette Lutes, home missions; Miss Helen Bowler, enthusiasm. Dr. Warner, pastor of the church, concluded with benediction.

Committee members responsible for the success of the rally included Dr. Warner, who co-operated on all the various committees, Mrs. R. I. Mathews, in charge of the banquet, and Miss Helen Wiesseman, president. Officers acting as hostesses included Betty Hill, Doris Keeler, Ruth Beemer, Helen Bowler, Dorothy Grizzle, Jeannette Lutes, Florence Warner, Margaret Guthrie, Mrs. William J. Stauffer, Miss Ethel Coffman and Mrs. R. I. Mathews.

MUSIC-LITERATURE-ART

INGOR STRAVINSKY

By RUTH ANDREWS

Part II
Ever since the completion of his sensational ballet, "The Firebird," in 1910, Igor Stravinsky has occupied a place of great prominence among the ranks of contemporary composers. The harmonic innovations which marked this glowing work were destined to startle continents and thus pave the way for far more anarchistic and characteristic productions from the pen of this Russian shatterer of musical tradition, whom no less an authority than Olin Downes of the New York Times terms "the most vital force modern music has produced in the last 20 years."

During the winter of 1912-13, when Stravinsky was but 31, he composed what is still acclaimed as his masterpiece, "Sacre du Printemps" (The Rites of Spring). This ballet, based upon the folk-lore of pagan Russia, startled the entire musical world with its frank, primitive and even savage effort to express the emotions and instincts awakened by the rebirth of nature under the spell of spring.

Modern composers have all been influenced in no small degree by this sensational work, and the resultant reaction that it has brought about against romanticism in music. Following its production in Paris and London in 1913, Stravinsky at once became for many lesser composers the hero of the hour. The luster of that fame so quickly won as the reward of anarchy has continued, despite the fact that but few of Stravinsky's more recent works have been especially significant.

From an orchestral standpoint, this work proved a real innovation, being marked by real originality and power, held in style and outline, mechanistic, especially unusual in the explosive type of rhythms employed by Stravinsky, and the choice of instrumentation used to obtain realistic effects. Indeed, this great genius for orchestration is one of Stravinsky's most outstanding characteristics as a composer.

The following year, 1914, Stravinsky revised his youthful opera, "The Nightingale," reproducing it in ballet form as "The Song of the Nightingale." The work was brought Art Notes . . .

Miss Leota Woy, former curator of the Laguna Art Gallery, was a visitor in Laguna this week. She was a guest at Hotel Laguna, which she had not seen since its completion last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Franquinet left this week for a sketching trip to 49 Palms and vicinity. Mr. Franquinet is a member of the Laguna Beach Art association, although he lives in Verdugo City in a little cottage formerly occupied by Lawrence Tibbett. A painting of this little home in the Pasadena hills is on display at the Burford Galleries and was painted by Hanson Puttuff.

The cash prize raised by the Laguna P. T. A. for the purchase of an oil painting for the school auditorium was awarded by the jury last Friday to Lee Hayes, who has a studio on school hill. The painting was entitled "Aliso Canyon, Laguna."

Two marines were secured by art patrons of the Fern Burford Galleries last week, one an Anna A. Hills marine and the other a painting of Arch Rock and the sea breaking upon it, painted by E. Franquinet.

Among the clubs to visit the art galleries of Laguna last week were the economics section of Santa Ana Ebell and the music section of the Woman's Improvement club of Corona. Mrs. E. L. Tilson, curator. There were 24 in the latter group and they had a picnic party at the cottage of Mrs. G. E. Snidecar on Monday.

Among the well-known artists and art patrons who have visited Laguna and the Anna A. Hills memorial exhibition, now being shown at the Fern Burford Galleries at Hotel Laguna, this week were: Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal King, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Meares, Miss Madge Stephens and Miss Emma Field of Tustin; Mrs. L. Moulton of El Toro, Mrs. Holmes Bishop of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gustlin; N. H. BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Radio Writing, by Peter Dixon, published by the Century company. Positively one of the most timely books is "Radio Writing." It is a comparatively new field, yet it is surprising the amount of advice this author is prepared to give on the subject. Many things have had to be learned quickly. Mr. Dixon has himself been active as a radio writer for three years—the author of the successful program, "Raising Junior."

Mr. Dixon makes no promise of teaching radio writing in ten easy lessons. He does give a clear picture of the mechanics of writing for the microphone. He explains in detail the fundamentals as well as the more advanced technique of preparing manuscripts for broadcasting.

There are several chapters on the drama, on interviews on the air; there is opportunity for ideas in the radio field, but not imitative. "Forget 'Amos 'n' Andy,'" says Mr. Dixon. "You can't imitate them. Others have tried and failed. They have staked a claim on the most productive paying ore in radio. However, there are undiscovered claims and these claims are waiting for the prospective radio writer."

"If you are ambitious to produce a rural sketch, first be sure you know the rural character. A few 'By gums!' and 'I'll be hornswoggled!' do not make rural comedy." For some guidance Mr. Dixon recommends the stage and, as even more useful, the newspaper.

Behind technique and mechanics, Mr. Dixon penetrates to the psychology of the radio audience. "There is little room for radicalism in radio. You are not addressing a select group of serious thinkers. You are dealing in masses."

Those who have had experience with the radio will most keenly appreciate this author's points. Some of them are so true that they inspire an impulse to rush into the radio room and read them aloud to the workers there. For example:

"Off hand I can think of but one type of program that would receive the undivided attention of the nation of listeners. An example of such a program would be a ten-round boxing match between President Hoover and Rudy Vallee. But, just as you can fool some of the people all of the time, you cannot please all of the people all of the time, and the result is that there are many radio audiences in the United States—not just a radio audience."

Moussia, the Life and Death of Marie Bashkirtseff, by Labeiric Cahuet, published by the Macaulay Company.

M. Cahuet's book affords us a marvelous opportunity for a most refreshing and inspiring contact. Charming, beautiful, ambitious, vivacious was Moussia, the Russian painter genius, who died at 24, long before she had realized her full powers of achievement. Her artistic accomplishments are subordinate, in the book, to her personality. Probably much to the advantage of the fascination of the book, for it is more interesting to most of us to read about personalities than art, even when presented in the concrete.

The source of material for M. Cahuet was Marie Bashkirtseff's journals and also conversations with a few friends and relatives. In the whole book, which one is tempted to take at one big gulp, no passage enthralled me quite so much as this from Marie's diary:

"It is curiosity that shall make death less frightful for me. Oh, when I think that we live only once and that every minute brings death nearer, I go mad! I do not fear death, but life is so short that to squander it is infamous. It seems to me that nobody loves everything as I do: the arts, music, painting, books, society, clothes, luxury, noise, calm, laughter, sadness, melancholy, love, cold, sunshine, all the seasons, all the atmospheric states, the calm plains of Russia and the snow in winter, the autumn rains, the spring and its foliage, the tranquil days of summer and the beautiful nights with brilliant stars." Loving life that way, who died at 24! Yet she compressed into those few years more experiences, more learning, more successes than most other people attain in a much longer period.

The author says that until the age of 19 the little girl was frail, homely, rude. Those about her adored her and never doubted her ultimate beauty and success. At the age of 12 Moussia became dissatisfied with the teaching which was thought sufficient for her. She therefore outlined a course of study for herself with the aid of professors who were astonished at her passion for culture. Nine hours of tasks and lessons every day was the schedule. Five months after the beginning Latin she had progressed as much as students at the lycee in three years. Truly an unusual child. Next she conceived a passion for Greek.

Marie studied art at the Atelier Julian, where Cecilia Beaux also studied. Her indomitable will forced her to work when she was physically incapable. For periods, those last few years, she was under the vigilant care of physicians. When they relaxed their vigil for even a brief time she would start four pictures, or one or two pictures and a statue.

It is a study of a charming introvert. It suggests speculation on the character and training of that sort of an individual, if one must think very deeply.

The Redlakes, by Francis Brett Young, published by Harper and Brothers.

"Redlakes" is a family name, that of Jim Redlakes, one of the outstanding characters of this prodigious novel. Jim's story begins when he was a boy and fled from his father's home with his mother, who carried him off lest the ego-centric and unnatural father take Jim from her and give him to a lady for adoption. Jim was placed in the home of the Westons, his mother's father and mother. Grandmother Weston is a snob, cold and ambitious, a match in devilishness of temperament only with Mrs. Jewell, a neighbor, and Jim's own father George Redlakes. A vast amount of material is gathered together in the book—descriptions and character delineations. There are English hunting scenes, school days, the home life in the Weston household. Then there are character studies—Jim's mother and father and grandmother and grandfather, and Jim's friend Julian, and the people who live at the castle, and aunts and cousins. And to extend it all there are farmers in South Africa and generals in the World War, for Jim is carried through all those experiences.

There is an impressive amount of good writing in the book, but there is also the feeling that Jim's personality is not sufficiently real to inveigle one into following him through the English countryside, South Africa and the World War, not to mention two romances. Practically all of the book is exceedingly well written except that in the denouement there are too many chance meetings. But if one likes English stories sufficiently one will forgive the author that in order at last to reach the end of the 609 pages.

The American Illusion, by Lucien Lehman, published by The Century Company. A real test of the control of one's intellect over one's passions is this book, "The American Illusion." The author, a Frenchman, spent five years in the United States. He has written his observations and impressions. It is lighter reading than Siegfried's "America Comes of Age," but one has the feeling that the author mingled more intimately with the people. He speaks of our hot-dog stands, our movies, our newspapers, Ellis Island, the beauty of the American women, the negroes, politics and religion.

In America, he says, one sees women "with faces of angels and bodies of nymphs that gladden your eyes and rejoice your soul, and before which you would fall on your knees if... the American girl had not been deprived of that quality more precious in a woman than beauty—the virtue known as modesty."

"One often has the impression that the American girl feels uncomfortable in her clothes and is really happy only when stark naked. This impression is confirmed when one remarks with what joy she puts on the nearest possible approach to nothing—that is, a one-piece, tight-fitting bathing suit." That statement from a Frenchman will be an eye-opener to our young American girls who have not yet become acquainted with the French woman's use of the factors of mystery and elusiveness to charm.

Book Notes . . .

Bliss Perry chose the poems and wrote the foreword for the "Selected Poems of Edwin Arlington Robinson." Mr. Robinson has supplied brief prefatory notes for the parts chosen from "Merlin," "Lancelot" and "Tristram."

Here, in a handy volume, are grouped sonnets, lyrics, dramatic monologues, poems of emotion and reflection—work representative of each type of verse by America's greatest poet, three times winner of the Pulitzer prize.

Christopher Robin Milne has turned "best book" selector himself. He reports that his favorites at present are "Treasure Island," "Phroso," "Kidnapped," "Bevis," "The Servant of a Dog" and "The Three Midshipmen." Young Mr. Milne is now 12 years old. His famous father is celebrating his 12th birthday with the Christopher Robin Birthday Book—a line or so from the Very Young and Pooh books for every birthday in the year. Duttons are publishing the birthday book, February 17.

In reviewing the great books about the World War, Frank H. Simonds, in the New York Herald-Tribune, makes particular mention of "Pooh: My Conversations With the Marshal," by Captain Raymond Recouly. "It is also necessary to read," says Mr. Simonds, "because of the great controversy it provoked, the volume by Raymond Recouly, the 'Captain X' of war narratives, which recounts Foch's views of Clemenceau and which provoked from the dying Tiger that terrible and sad book 'The Grandeur and Miseries of Victory'."

"The Memoirs of Garibaldi," edited by Alexandre Dumas and translated into English by R. S. Garnett, are being brought out in a well illustrated volume this week by D. Appleton and Company. Here for the first time is given the complete work as edited by Dumas, with the latter's considerable additions clearly indicated. Included are important contributions by George Sand and Victor Hugo. These, and an introduction: "How I Came to Know Garibaldi," and appendices by Dumas have not hitherto been translated. Mr. Garnett deserves a world of thanks for having authenticated the Dumas chapters and for having obtained the important original Dumas manuscripts which made this possible.

There will be particular interest in "Mexican Maze" by Carlston Beals, the June choice of the Book League of America, as Beals probably knows the country south of the Rio Grande better than any other United States citizen. Beals has been living in Mexico on and off the last 16 years. Many art critics believe that Diego Rivera, a native of Mexico, who illustrated "Mexican Maze," is the first artist in the Americas today.

HELD TO ANSWER
William Ramirez, Richfield Mexican, was held to answer to the superior court from Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today, on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested on May 10, by Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean. His bail was fixed at $500, which was not made.

NEW YORK SUN PRAISES TIRE CO.'S STAND

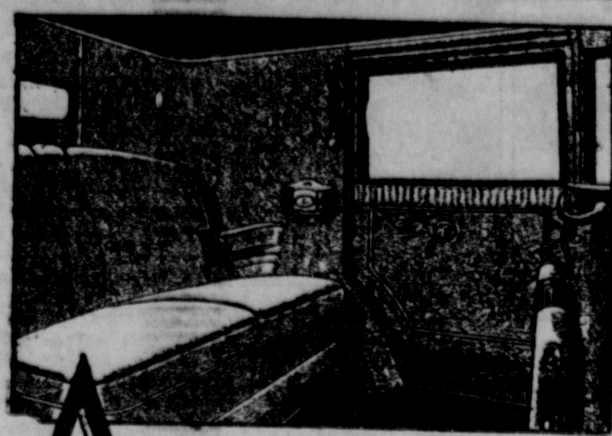

Editors of some of the country's leading newspapers have commented recently upon the unbroken record of the General Tire and Rubber company in paying dividends regularly on both classes of its stock ever since the company was formed. The New York Sun made the following editorial comment in a recent issue.

"It is no longer news for the General Tire and Rubber company to declare a dividend on its common stock, but in these years it is something for a company to pay its sixty-first consecutive dividend, and that's what General has just done."

"Mr. O'Neill, General's commander-in-chief, says that the plant is now running at 91 per cent of capacity and that last year wages were only nine per cent less than the year before."

J. Ronald Dawn, writer of a daily industrial news column in the Johnstown, Pennsylvania Democrat, says in one of his recent columns:

Of course...you can get along without Twin Ignition

...but you don't get along so well

You could, if necessary, see with one eye. You can drive with one hand. Two make a better job of it.

The same applies to Twin Ignition. People who drive the Nash Twin Ignition Eight-80 or Eight-90 (16 spark plugs, 16 firing points, instead of 8) have a distinct advantage over cars still using single ignition. The gasoline mixture is burned more quickly and more completely.

By engineering test, the same motor with Twin Ignition instead of single ignition, produces 22% more power, 5 more miles per hour top speed and 2 extra miles of travel from a gallon of gasoline.

Of course, you can get along without Twin Ignition. But we say, and these cars will prove it, that you don't get along so well!

Just compare the pep, power, smoothness and gasoline consumption of the Nash Eight-80 or Eight-90 with cars of the single ignition type at the same price, and you'll agree with us, and with Nash owners, that there is a most desirable improvement.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY NAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Said Clowny, "Gee, a camel's queer. There's not a thing he seems to fear. He slowly plops along the street and looks 'bout half asleep. He goes for days without a drink and that's remarkable, I think. I've seen one easily climb a hill that really was quite steep."

They watched some others passing near. Cried Scouty, "Call one over here. We'll ask the owner if he'll make his camel flop right down. The way twill get down on its knees is funny, yet it's done with ease. And then, perhaps, we'll have a chance to ride around the town."

Woe Coppy quite agreed that this was something he would hate to miss. And then he shouted, "Hey, look there! That camel's almost white. And gee, he seems so big and tall. I'm sure that he could hold us all. If we can climb upon him we will be a funny sight."

And then the Travel Man ran out and had the camel swung about and led back to the Tinymites. "It's all arranged," said he. "I've paid the man to take you all out for a ride. Climb on. Don't fall. I'll wait right here and when you've finished, ride back to me."

The camel owner shouted loud and to the amusement of the crowd, the camel dropped down to the ground. The bunch climbed on his back. "Let's cling to one another tight," said Carpy. "Then we'll be all right." Just then the owner gave the camel one resounding whack.

The beast rose in a clumsy way and Clowny loudly cried, "Hurray! Here's where we get a tipsy trip. I've tried this stunt before. A camel tips you to and fro. Watch out, you lads, or off you'll go." The tipping very shortly made the band of Tinsles roar.

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes, which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you use is one in good usage.

McCLURE TALKS ON CAUSE AND CURE OF CRIME

Declaring that the cause and cure of crime lies in the form of state and municipal government and asserting that government officials should be trained men with opportunity for a career as great as that offered to business and professional men, S. S. McClure, nationally known editor, publisher and lecturer, spoke at the organization meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of the United Presbyterian church last night, on "The Science of Human Organization as Applied to Government."

The veteran editor, declared that an excessive amount of crime existed in American cities because of the inefficiency of the personnel of various forms of American government and that this in turn arose from the fact that not enough good men to carry on in office or make public office attractive to the right sort of men. He declared that the way out was to adopt the "Parliament" type of government with centralized authority and responsibility and trained corps of municipal and state officials.

In answer to the question he raised of how a mass of people organize to carry on activities of business or government, the speaker declared that through a study he had made of the problem of self government he found there were two characteristics—(1) that a large number do not vote; and (2) that one man or a small group controls the policies or acts of the larger group. "Where people combine successfully for this purpose, they choose a smaller group to act as their representatives or board of directors," he said, and continued to point out that all successful business corporations are operated by a group of highly trained men, the best that may be obtained who are selected by the board of directors and who are kept in charge so long as they produce results.

This "Parliament" form of municipal government is in vogue in all the cities in the world except in the United States, the speaker declared, and enables other countries to have superior municipal government. German and English cities are best examples, he said. Separation of legislative, judicial and administrative authority is the principal difficulty with the American form of government, according to the speaker, who urged that they be combined. He pointed out that separation of the three was included in the form of American government when it was worked out as a supposed balance and check to prevent tyranny.

Recommendations for a better form of government from the editor included establishment of a judiciary for state, county and local government by selecting the men carefully as they do for positions on the supreme court bench of the nation, making their positions for life, subject to good conduct, and paying them salaries worth while.

The number of judges in a state and the number of murders is an indication of the amount of crime and need for another form of centralized authority and responsibility, the speaker asserted. He also declared that in German cities where this form of government was used, graft was unknown and cities searched the entire nation for the best men they could obtain to fill vacancies in municipal offices.

In commenting on murder he presented a chart which he had prepared showing that the United States has from 10 to 30 times as many murders as other nations. The average over a period of 40 years is 10 per 100,000 of population. It is running at that level now.

Based on wide observation, Chief Justice Taft once said that the administration of criminal justice in the United States was a disgrace to civilization," McClure said. "You can't have successful courts where the judges are elected by the people. Defenses against crime have broken down, including judges, police and prosecuting attorneys. The cause is the inefficiency of the organization of government to protect life and property. There has been a vast change in the amount of corruption since adoption of the Eighteenth amendment. Things are better."

"It is recognized that local officials are frequently corrupt, often ignorant and do not co-operate. Why not look out why such conditions do not obtain here?"

"If a prosecuting attorney becomes competent and does his business because it is so rare."

"Government is the most important and most difficult business there is. It is the only business in America done by men who are untrained. When headed by an incompetent man dishonesty is bound to creep into government. The place to reform is at the bottom of the list. There is greater organizing ability in the U. S. than any other nation and we

Orders Issuance Of Stock Shares

A writ of alternative mandamus was issued by Judge James L. Allen yesterday in accordance with a petition filed by the Highland Securities corporation, limited, and E. Rockhill, directing R. R. Carey, president, and George Raw, secretary, of the Southern California company, limited, to issue $344 shares of stock in their concern, which it is alleged is the amount due the petitioners for promotion services in accordance with a contract. The court order directs that the stock shall be deposited with the Commercial National bank of Santa Ana. If the company officials fail to comply with the order they are directed to appear in court next Tuesday afternoon and show cause why such action has not been taken.

At the same time, the sheriff's office announced that pictures of Jack McVane, being held in the San Diego jail in connection with the case, were on their way here, for the Orange man to see.

The new development in the case as far as local officers are concerned came when the man from Orange reported to the sheriff that with a party of five persons he drove from Orange to Tama, Ariz., on February 13, 10 days before Virginia's body was found near San Diego. He reported to the officers at Mesa, Ariz., and was referred to the police of Phoenix, where he later reported it.

The Orange man is sure that he can identify the man he saw with the girl at that time, he said. He said that he talked with the couple and that the man said he was on his way to Kansas.

With Officer Hickok, special investigator for the state of California, who is aiding San Diego police in the Brooks murder mystery, Sheriff Logan Jackson and other officers again interviewed Putnam at the county hospital yesterday afternoon.

Putnam is said to have told the story he told officers the day before, denying all knowledge of the Brooks murder.

He said that he was visiting with McVane from January 15 until February 23. McVane told officers that Putnam was at his cabin only one day, officers said.

Putnam was returned to the county jail today from the hospital, hospital attendants stating there was no further reason for keeping him under observation there. Putnam faces a check charge at the present time and shortly before noon, again entered the jail.

Mr. George A. Warner, of Santa Ana, was the soloist on the musical program and James A. Geisinger, superintendent of the Southern California conference, spoke.

The resolutions committee, Mrs. H. C. Chapman, Mrs. Carrol Yonge and Mrs. Roby C. Jones included in resolutions presented, one pledging the allegiance of the society to the enforcement of the 18th amendment.

CONDITION OF MISS PHILLIPS IMPROVED

Encouraging reports issued today regarding the condition of Miss Elizabeth Phillips, former secretary of the board of education, relieved the minds of a host of friends of Miss Phillips, who had been alarming at her condition following an emergency appendicitis operation Wednesday in a Los Angeles hospital.

Miss Phillips resigned from her position as secretary to the city superintendent, J. A. Cranston, and as secretary of the school board last week because of poor health, and left with her mother, Mrs. Cornelia Hunt Phillips, for a short visit in Alhambra with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dodge before continuing to San Francisco for an extended stay. Mrs. Dodge was formerly Miss Helen Phillips, of this city.

While in Alhambra Miss Phillips was stricken suddenly and the emergency operation followed. Early reports of her condition were not very favorable, as complications were feared, but according to physicians in attendance, she is now making an excellent recovery.

Mrs. Phillips, who was taken ill at the same time, remains under a physician's care in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dodge, but was reported this morning as showing a marked improvement as well as her daughter.

DEMAND BEST IN REFRIGERATION

Now that the novelty and the newness of the idea of electrical refrigeration has worn off and it has become a necessity in a well planned kitchen, women are beginning to apply sound, common sense in buying, says Mr. Liggett, of the Liggett Radio company, of Santa Ana, recently appointed distributor for Kelvinox.

"Women are asking the utmost in value and economy of operation, as well as good looks and the claims of the manufacturer," said Mr. Liggett.

"Financing plans which make possible budget purchase of such household equipment have very greatly enlarged the field in which refrigeration can be bought."

"The Liggett Radio company is featuring a standard rating scale for electrical refrigeration, which provides 16 pertinent questions, which can be used as a guide in buying. Any refrigerator which will meet these 16 requirements will give satisfactory service and proper value, it is said."

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 15.—(UP)—Stock resumed their irregular drift to moderately lower levels today after the leaders had met feeble support in the early trading.

The list as a whole held within an extremely narrow range until about the close when a renewed selling made its appearance in Steel Common and American Can, forcing them both to new low ground for the year on losses of about two points each. Auburn slumped to around the 260 level, a loss of more than 20 points after an early spurt to 215.

Dealings in other sections of the list attracted the attention, fullness of the trading suggested a complete absence of speculative participation in the market. Turnover barely crossed the 200,000 share level, one of the lightest Saturday's sessions since the bull market started in 1924.

At the close wheat was 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 lower with May 1 1/2 down, corn was 1/2 to 1/4 lower and oats were 1/4 to 1/2 lower. Provisions were 1/4 to 1/2 lower on hard wheat and meat steady.

Cash prices were wheat unchanged with corn and oats 1/4 to 1/2 lower. Receipts were wheat 58 cars, corn 91 and oats 21.

Some of the better grade industrial leaders were under persistent pressure as the result of the renewed weakness in Can and Steel. National Biscuit was down 1/4, three points to another new low for the present shares and pronounced heaviness developed in International Business Machines, Woolworth and Ann Smelting.

Montgomery Ward and Alaska Judiciary were about to move in the trend for a time, influenced by pot activity. The latter at one time sold more than a point higher at 16 1/4, a new high.

Petroleum and utility shares attracted little attention but sold off moderately when the leaders, with most of the coppers sold at further 1931 low ground under the leadership of American Smelting. No improvement developed near the close and most issues finished at further new lows for the year.

MUTT AND JEFF—Just a Little Favor Between Pals

SOCIETY

Church Societies

Members of the Fabola class of the First Baptist church entertained their mothers in the church recently when they were hostesses at their annual celebration for the mothers and daughters. A delectable covered-dish dinner was served, and included as its main dish, Virginia baked ham.

Following the dinner an enjoyable program took place, with Miss Gave Harris, Americanization worker, giving an interesting talk on some of her experiences. Miss Lorena Cuddy, with six of her students, gave a song recital. Miss Edna Ingham acted as toastmistress for the evening. Mrs. Frances Jones is president of the class and Mrs. W. Adkinson is the teacher.

GRADUATION TIME APPROACHING

Some time ago a current number of one of the humorist magazines was entitled "Commencement Number." On the cover page was a drawing of a young man and a young woman in a ridiculous position, each asking the other, "What shall we commence?" All over the country there are hundreds of thousands of young people finishing the grades, others finishing the high schools, other closing college courses, others completing their professional preparation, ready to commence their specific duties in their chosen calling. The hearts of the young people are thrilled because of the realization that certain parts of their life's work as planned has been completed and that they stand prepared to enter a larger field.

We desire to congratulate the young people in our own city who have completed their high school course and stand on the threshold of a new era for them, either to enter college life for further preparation or to address themselves to life's work in some other line.

We know that it must appear to the graduates of our high school as to other graduates that it seems that all are bent on giving advice and we are, but may we suggest that one of the chief reasons is that your friends are interested in your plans and in your future, and so we are going to venture a word of advice ourselves.

Our suggestion would be, "Have a purpose, be definite, determine TO DO SOMETHING, do not be satisfied with the niche you have fallen in or even climbed into after graduation day." It is needless to advise that you should not be a drifter. It is the man who has a purpose, who has a definite aim that gets more out of life and is capable of putting more into life. The man who has completed his high school course with a definite purpose of how he is going to use it has gotten more out of it as he has gone through. He has conscientiously applied what he has learned to those imagined necessities of a future day. Do not be satisfied with any particular attainment in the sense that you fail to aim higher and go farther.

While this period is a good time to remember, in another sense it is a good time to forget. "Forgetting those things which are behind," wrote one of the keenest minds 2000 years ago, "I press toward the mark."

Determine whatever work you go into to measure up to its highest possibilities. As you will necessarily be under the direction of those more experienced, accept those directions in the spirit that insures you success in carrying them out, for it is the one who understands the meaning of taking orders who finally develops into the man who is able to give them. Do not be satisfied until you have reached the point of sufficient ability to give them. But keep constantly in mind that the only one who is fit to give them is the one who has become so disciplined that he can follow them.

It goes without saying that you should keep yourself clean and pure and uncontaminated by the world, but this is not sufficient. This is a progressive hour. A hitching post may be good for its particular purpose but the driver must unhitch from the post if he would ever make the next town. The surest road to success is through the development of a personality and a personality is only possible by being distinctive from the mass, being aggressive and fighting for it. There are many things worthwhile to fight for. There are cleanliness and purity in government, the development of the best things in civic life. Begin first in your own personal life, then in your home, make your life and your home a shining example for your neighbors and aim to develop and establish those personal standards in your home, state and national life.

You will soon be no longer prodded by the teacher or your parents. There are only two things that will spur you on. One of them is the fear of failure, the other is the desire for achievement. These should keep you awake, alert, and almost restless until such time as through experience of actual accomplishment you can have the confidence that your success is assured. This is the most dangerous hour for the habit of sloth and apathy to fasten their snapping tentacles upon you.

You have been privileged to have this much of preparation, continue your learning that you shall bear your part of the load that every citizen must carry to be worthy of his heritage.

THE CHURCH AND SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Pope Pius XI will sound a popular note in his encyclical on labor, which is shortly to be published. Yesterday over the radio Mgr. Francis J. Spellman gave a resume of the encyclical. With world wide economic depression there is a crying need for social readjustment. The following quotation is from the resume:

"The difference in social conditions in the human family, which were widely decreed by the Creator, must not and cannot ever be abolished, but on the other hand the condition of the proletarian worker cannot forever be the normal condition of the bulkhead of mankind. It is essential that the proletariat be enabled gradually to obtain some of the advantages enjoyed by proprietors.

"In the present order this can be accomplished only by a fair and just wage. Wages, therefore, must be such as really to satisfy the legitimate requirements of an honest workman, not only for his person but also for his family and to make it possible for him to improve his condition within the limits above described."

Leading Protestant leaders have been sounding the tocsin that the church must concern itself more with the economic and social phases of society, Reinhold Niebuhr, Harry F. Ward and others. The church must assume leadership in the application of Christ's teachings where they are most blatantly not being applied or lose its power.

The people who have been caught between the upper and nether millstones in the economic depression are wondering about the way out. The influence of the church lies in assuming leadership in those things which are most vital to the people it aims to serve. The bulk of the people are concerned today about acquiring those necessities which will leave them free from fear of their future so that they may turn to things spiritual.

If the test of Christianity as established by the church, should come to be the suppression to some degree, in a few people of the acquisitive instinct, so that to enable one's brothers to have equality of opportunity for the benefits of civilization; it would be difficult for easy-going church members, but it would put new vitality into the church, for when the church is following most closely the precepts of Christ, it renews and strengthens itself.

THE SCENE IN SACRAMENTO

It doesn't take much imagination to picture the scene in Sacramento these last few hours of the Legislature. California is not the only state which stages such a scene as the sessions draw to a close. We have observed in other states. In Illinois, for example, the clock being turned back in order to observe the legal time for adjournment, the mass of bills being rushed through, each legislator's desk a mass of papers with only those lawmakers particularly interested in a bill paying attention to it, and with the tension being broken now and then almost by hoodlumism. And in that rush what bills are passed? Who knows? Some day we will know about some of them, and quite possibly to our sorrow.

Good News From Angmagalik

The happy outcome of the search by air, land and water for Augustine Courtauld, the young Englishman who was believed lost on the Greenland ice cap where he had spent the winter alone in a tiny observation hut, will elicit world-wide gratification. The efforts mobilized for his rescue had become international in scope and the dramatic flight of Capt. Albin Ahrenberg from Sweden had particularly focused public attention.

In one sense Captain Ahrenberg lost the race he was engaged in—lost it to a dog sled. Of course the dogs had to go only 140 miles—the distance from the base of the British Arctic Air Route Expedition near Angmagalik to the observation hut—while the airplane flew at least 1400 miles from Malmoe to Greenland. But really the "race" ended in victory all around.

That young Courtauld should have been found by members of his own party, was a vindication of its 23-year old leader, H. G. Watkins, who undertook a second sledge trip to the inland station after the failure of his first search for Courtauld's hut.

And the Sweden-to-Greenland flight was a triumph for the airplane, which, very fittingly, had gone to the aid of this expedition, itself dedicated to the task of finding whether an land conditions for a short-cut air line from Edinburgh to Winnipeg, which would take advantage of the arctic land masses—nowhere more than 300 miles apart. The rescue flight itself does something to indicate the feasibility of this course, although it was made necessary by terrific storms which swept "Greenland's icy mountains" and blocked earlier relief expeditions.

Yet it was a victory too for Captain Ahrenberg, who was somewhat frowned upon two years ago because he turned back after five attempts to fly the last leg of this same route—from Iceland to Greenland—with a damaged plane and in the face of ice-forming fog. The Swedish aviator has now turned the frown into smiles, and has been of real service, dropping supplies to the Watkins sledge party and bringing back word of Courtauld's safety.

Of course, Courtauld has also won—not only by surviving the long winter's vigil on the ice cap, but possibly also by obtaining valuable information which will help the Royal Geographical Society and the British Government in endeavors to forge a new air link between Britain and Canada.

Scientist Takes Sides With Common Appetite

Now if the Colgate University scientist can sustain the case he makes for personal liking as a factor in diet, generations tired of the tyranny of calories and vitamins will rise up to call him blessed. The professor doesn't dismiss the calories and vitamins as unimportant. But he says that digestion, therefore nourishment, depends on individual taste as much as on anything else.

So ham and eggs and cold mince pie come back to their historic posts of honor and bring in their train all those delightful dishes which modern dietitians had relegated to the domain of memory.

As for the long-suffering modern child, he now can advance an "out" for spinach and cereal by citing the Colgate professor. And, wonder of wonders, this welcome authority puts his "O.K." on the second dessert.

Yes, thank you. Make it pie a la mode.

How Doth the Little Busy Bee Improve Each Shining Hour?

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A HYMN OF HATE

Again comes Spring; again the ant
Piles busily the same vocations;
Again we hear the time-worn cant
That she deserves man's imitation.
Once more do foolish folk aver
That men their children should not coddle
But sternly bid them make of her
Their model.

But why devote the gift of life
To an improvident endeavor?
Why spend one's days in weary strife
In which there is no joy whatever.
Why ply the dull fatiguing trade
Expected of a Russian peasant
When this existence may be made
So pleasant?

The ant plods on from dawn to dark
At weary, unremitting labor.
She never takes time out to lark
Or beat a figurative labor.
And when she's lying, cold and still,
In some remote and clammy corner
There's not an insect in the hill
To mourn her.

And is her work of any use
That dull-brained pedagogues should love her?
Have her dumb efforts an excuse?
Not one, so far as I discover.
Far better, when we see her stir,
Among the grass her form to trample
Than teach the young to follow her Example.

Machine-Made Unemployment

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Now comes upon the market a machine which will make cigarettes three times as fast as the machines which are now in use. And, of course, with fewer laborers.

But such inventions are no longer news. Productivity per man hour is constantly increasing. More rapidly than ever before, machines are replacing men.

This is the crux of the farm problem. Not so very long ago most of the human race had to labor to keep the race from starving. Now, in the United States at least, a small proportion of laborers can feed the entire population.

How can we find work for all the surplus labor? Must we, by every device of advertising and salesmanship, stimulate everybody to buy more things than are good for him—more even than he really wants—in order to keep men employed? Must we extol waste as a virtue? Must we go on forever producing things, things, things, and more things, merely to provide jobs?

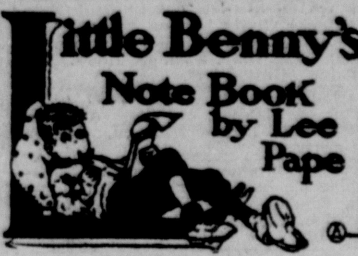

Certainly not. Consumers need services as well as things. Both provide employment.

Medical services, in particular, fall far short of human needs. Even in the United States, about 70 per cent of the needed dental care is not provided at all. In other health services, taken as a whole, the deficiency appears to be equally large. Abundant evidence of this shortage was laid before the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care at its meeting in Washington, D. C., today.

The experts of the Committee, who have been at work for the past three years on this problem, report that the total annual cost of medical care in the United States is approximately three billion dollars.

We should spend twice as much as that for medical care. We need it. We can afford it. We can thereby, eventually, partly offset machine-made unemployment.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

TOWARDS A NEW MOOD.

On Monday of this week, I described the fickle way in which we have gone skeptic to many of the major ideas that moved us during the last fifteen years.

We have, I said, come to doubt the validity of the democracy for which we fought to make the world safe.

We have come to damn the engineering mind we deified but a few years ago.

We have come to suspect that the mass production we thought the forerunner of the millennium is little more than a mirage.

We have become devastating critics of that parliamentary government by free discussion which, in the flaming days of war, we thought must be substituted for the world around for the whim of emperors and the flirts of dictators.

This is the post-war mood we have brought to these basis matters.

We need a new mood!

The pre-war mood respecting democracy, the engineering mind, mass production, and parliamentary government was a mood of credulous assumption that these major ideas would automatically operate for man's benefit, and the war mood but fortified this assumption. This credulity was childish, but the wholesale skepticism we have brought to these major ideas is equally pre-adolescent.

We must move from the pre-war credulous assumptions about these ideas to a creative administration of them.

We must, as I said Tuesday, revise democracy, not renounce it.

We must, as I said Wednesday, emancipate the engineering mind from the sterile tyranny of the financier and the laggard business man, and give the realism of the engineer a chance at American life.

We must, as I said Thursday, make mass production serve mankind instead of swamping it with surplus output.

We must, as I said Friday, use instead of undermining our parliamentary democracies which, after all, are safer than the whims of dictators.

These indicate some of the phases of the new mood I think we must bring to the affairs of the America of the next quarter century.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI
SUN AND AIR

The best medical care in the world will not keep a child in health if he has no sunshine and no fresh air. Those two forces are essential to the healthy growth of children. Until they are provided in sky high, sky wide quantities there is little use in doctoring and dieting.

"I would do anything to make my child well. What can I do? I have been to the best doctors, what can I do? They want me to take the child to the country and let him live in the open air. I'd have to move. I can't move. Our business, our lives are here. What can I do?"

Move. There is a price for everything, a high price for a child's health, perhaps, but that is as you look at it. If your child is not getting his full share of sunshine and fresh air he will have to have them or remain an invalid for the time he can hold out against unhappy conditions.

If a child has rickets he must play in the open air in the warm sunshine. But he is to get his sunshine under the direction of a competent physician. Because you read here that sunshine is essential to the growth of your child you are not to strip him and set him in the warm sunshine for a sunbath. That is very dangerous. You are to consult a competent person who will tell you how and when and why to use sunshine.

Sunbaths must be given with great discretion and care. We begin by exposing a little of the body to the sun and gradually increasing the area of skin and the length of the exposure to the sunshine. Only an expert can give the directions for such treatment. So be careful.

In bad weather the children ought to have a screened porch for a play space. It will not do to send them out to hold their own against the wind and rain. They use so much energy in fighting the elements that they have none left for play. Fresh air does not mean exposure to hardship. It means that the children have a chance to breathe outside air clean wholesome, pure air. The more sunshine in the air the better.

Dress the children according to the need. When the weather moderates change the costume. There is nothing quite so unintelligent as dressing according to the calendar and ignoring the weather conditions and the state of the child's health. Some people think that a sweater is a charm against colds. It isn't. A charm at all, just a garment to be worn as needed. It is not at all ways brings.

Night brings its own troubles in this matter of fresh air. Some folk think that a right smart breeze direct from the north zone is fine. Others open their windows half at inch at the bottom. Others close everything tight. Open the windows top and bottom, avoid a draught, put a blanket under the child as we as over him. Sunshine, fresh air in right proportion are what the child needs. See that he gets them.

ON THE SIDELINES

MOVIES GROW BETTER AS "LEGITIMATE" GROWS WORSE.—Although the last 10 years have brought, in our opinion, an increasing quality of excellence to the films, a quality which has been increased by the perfecting of the "talkies," it has also brought in many cases a sad deterioration to the legitimate stage.

Whereas the talkies have been attaining constantly to a higher standard, the legitimate stage, faced with the problem of maintaining its popularity in opposition to the talkies, has often met such a problem by lowering its standards, appealing to its public's appreciation of questionable and saccharine situations.

Take for example Leon Errol's comedy, "Lost Sheep," which has recently played in certain coast theaters. The play has for its theme one which 20 years ago would hardly be considered a conventional one for a star of Errol's calibre, or any other. The humor of the play was entirely dependent on a questionable situation, and the star himself played the part of a dissipated individual throughout the three acts of the comedy.

Contrast this with some of the recent talkies which have been offered to the public. "Trader Horn," one of the best scenic and animal pictures ever screened, according to the critics; "Cimarron," Edna Ferber's pioneer notable picture; "Tom Sawyer," an immortal boys' story—and even Otis Skinner, one of the great legitimate artists, who has given "Kismet" a talkie version.

These are only a few of the recent talkies which have given the American public everywhere unusual advantages in historical dramatic, scenic and literary lore. It is our earnest hope that the legitimate drama will improve as the movies have done in the talkie era, and the two branches of dramatic endeavor will go forward together to greater success.

A WONDERFUL LIFE.—The people of Honolulu, regardless of class or nationality, united to honor the life and works of the man who was probably Hawaii's best known citizen, Brother Joseph Dutton, the "Good Samaritan of Molokai."

Although Brother Dutton had not left the leper settlement of Molokai for nearly half a century until illness last July caused his removal to Honolulu, he carried on a correspondence with scores of persons in Hawaii and elsewhere, and the story of his life of self-sacrifice had become known throughout the world.

Born Ira B. Dutton, he served with the 13th Wisconsin Infantry during the Civil war and later made his home in Memphis. There was an element of mystery in his life as he had never explained in detail the causes which led him to decide to give the rest of his life in volunteer penance.

He became converted to the Catholic faith, was baptized Joseph Dutton, and entered a Trappist monastery. From there he went to the Redemption Fathers in New Orleans, and after reading about the work of Father Damien, decided to offer his services in Molokai, where he was known as "Brother" Dutton and remained lay worker.
